This reduction in volume entering the sanitary sewer may be determined or estimated.

(1) The user may install a meter in the sanitary sewer at a location, where the volume of flow is known.

(2) The volume of evaporation loss may be computed or estimated based on the area of the water surface exposed to the atmosphere.

Subd. 2. Laundries and Laundromats. In the event that a commercial laundry or laundromat is located in a residential area, the assessment of charges shall be based on the volume of water used in the laundry or laundromat.
